

FATHER & SON CAMP

Why should your sons have all the fun? Any father who has ever asked himself that question will find that we answer it with our yearly Father & Son Days. As soon as the buses leave camp, taking most of our boys home at the conclusion of the camp season, Father & Son Days participants begin their special camping experience.

With our entire facility and all activities open for their enjoyment and a full complement of staff to supervise its use, fathers and sons (and even younger brothers, grandfathers, other relatives, and friends) can feel free to use camp as they wish. There are planned group activities, such as softball games, tennis tournaments, and campfires, as well as time for canoe rides and trips out with your sons.

Some fathers seize this opportunity to show their sons how wisdom and experience more than compensate for a lost step or five on the playing field. Others offer themselves as fine examples in the lost art of relaxation. As for the boys, they simply relish the opportunity to spend time alone with their dads.

As idyllic as this retreat sound, it may not be for everyone. Fathers sleep in cabins together with their sons on a shared basis with other families. The sleeping accommodations may be rustic, but they afford a wonderful natural experience.

As for food, there is absolutely nothing rustic about the meals we have planned; an authentic Maine Lobster bake, a prime rib dinner, a selection of lunch items, and full buffet breakfasts are annual favorites. Before dinner each evening we have a cocktail party and "coketail" party.

We also recommend Father & Son Days as an excellent opportunity for prospective campers and their dads to get a good feel of Camp Cedar.

So please dig out your baseball glove, bathing suit, tennis racquet and canteen, and spend a great weekend with your son at Camp Cedar.
